

Lemon Grove to Continue Steady, Progressive Development

Local Banker Optimistic For Future

Construction will continue as one of the most important factors in the Lemon Grove economy for the remainder of 1950 despite problems which have resulted from the outbreak of the Korean war.

This view was expressed today by Jack Koop, manager of the Lemon Grove Branch, First National Trust and Savings Bank, who said many local residents are going ahead with plans to build new homes.

Koop attributed the growing interest in new home construction to two factors:

1. The diminishing prospect of downward adjustments in building costs, and a belief in many quarters that construction costs in the future will be at least as high as they are today;

2. The indefinite outlook with regard to both availability of materials and low down-payment financing terms.

Koop estimated that building contracts now being processed at the Lemon Grove Branch represent prices generally about 10 percent greater than the level prevailing from six to eight weeks ago.

Koop said the trend in material and labor costs, as well as the availability of building materials, is difficult to predict because of a constantly changing international situation.

"However," he added, "there is every indication that many new homes will be built in Lemon Grove during the last four months of 1950 inasmuch as there has been no allocation of building materials on a broad scale for national defense purposes."

"To date, government contracts involve almost no plant construction or the building of facilities for the armed forces which would require the materials now going into housing," he added.

Koop said that there are some indications that materials will be in better supply after dealers have replenished inventories depleted in the first wave of scarce buying.

He also pointed out that government agencies have expressed concern over the rising trend of building costs, and have indicated that G. I. mortgages will not be guaranteed where construction costs are above the July level.

"If there is a serious enforcement of the policy," Koop said, "this would not only act as a brake on new construction but would tend to check the rise in building costs."

During the first seven months of 1950, building permits in San Diego totaled $21,504,043, up 64 percent, above the corresponding period of last year; and, permits in the remainder of the county totaled $19,278,548, up 50 percent above last year.

Hi, Neighbor

by Mac Rex Graham

Stopping in at the Trading Post, 8131 Broadway, I heard an old popular tune being played on a music box. I was delighted for any make or size of music box has always intrigued me.

I immediately went in and found the tinkling strains coming from no ordinary instrument. It is encased in a beautifully carved box made of cherry wood. The records are large and flat, made of thin metal in Switzerland from whence come many of the most highly prized players.

This music box, will probably find its way into some collector's room or it would even grace a museum.

If you like music boxes, drop in to the Trading Post any day and Mr. or Mrs. Palmer will be happy to play it for you.

The Palmers told me that several antique collectors have a habit of dropping in often for they never know when they may get hold of some valuable items.

Not all of their stock is old, however, for they have new things coming in often and are always glad to take orders for any item not in stock.

All of the Hi Neighbors on our side of Broadway are feeling sad because we are losing Frank and Fairline Roberts who have sold the Western Auto Store. They have been such fine loyal friends that all of their customers will miss them.

However, we do extend a hearty welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Gregory, who are anxious to get acquainted with all of you Hi Neighbors. Stop by and give them a welcome hand and let them know what fine hospitable folks we have in Lemon Grove.

While you are down town, how about stopping and saying "Howdy" to Dr. James White, our new optometrist, in Dr. Peter Shea's office. By the way Dr. White is a brother of Mrs. Shea. Need I say more.

Are your school children enrolled? If not, please do so at once. With the overcrowded conditions in our schools, you can do a real service to the school by having your children enrolled before next week.

Young Folks at Camp Marston

Young people of the First Congregational Church attending the Junior High School camp at Camp Marston the past week were Sylvia Barr, Jackie Coppenberger, Marilyn Bunch, Gloria Jones, Carol Kregar, David Lee, Ronnie Netzel, Carolyn Smith and Jacqueline Lalrsey.

Counselors from the local church were Mrs. Walter Lindley, Mrs. Joe Nemes, Miss Gertrude Scovel and Rev. Dan Apra.

New Market Opening Here

The market is operated by Fred Stubbe, LeRoy "Frenchie" Berube and George Kastelic.

GARDEN SECTION MEETING

IT'S A GIRL

A baby girl, JoNell Agnes, was born on August 18 to Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Gagnon, 2930 Main. She weighed eight pounds nine ounces. Baby JoNell has two sisters, Brenda and Dixie, whose birthdays are also in August.

Roberts' Sell Western Auto

Vernon Gregory, of Greeley, Colo., has purchased the Western Auto Store, 7820 Broadway, from Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roberts and took possession today (Thursday).

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory came to San Diego the first of August and he had spent the past month going over the state looking for a location in a good community. Mr. Gregory says he chose Lemon Grove because he considers it the "hot spot" of California with prospects for a great future. Mr. Gregory also stated that he will carry on the high standards of business and service established by the Roberts.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory have two sons, Stephen, 5, and Roger, 18 months. They will move to Lemon Grove as soon as a residence can be obtained.

Mr. Gregory will be assisted in the store by Mrs. Gregory's mother, Mrs. Hester Jacoby.

Frank and Fairline Roberts purchased the Western Auto in February, 1949, with Mrs. Roberts managing the business alone until Frank, who was a Chief in the Navy, retired in May. Through hard work, integrity and real service, they have built up a splendid, prosperous business. Frank expects to be called back in Naval service very soon or they would never have made this move.

The Roberts have made a large circle of friends in Lemon Grove as well as in neighboring communities from which they have drawn considerable patronage. Their many friends will wish them well in whatever their future undertakings may be.

Teenagers Ready to Name Officers

The newly organized Teenagers Club of Lemon Grove held a most successful meeting at Community Center last Friday evening.

A committee was appointed to bring in a list of candidates at the next meeting on Saturday evening, September 9, at which time the club's first election will be held.

A welcine roast and dance will follow the election of the new officials.

Two Popular Pictures Coming

The Grove undoubtedly will play to packed houses Sunday and Monday when "The Good Humor Man," with Jack Carson comes to town.

The bill for the rest of the week promises to be plenty hot, too, with Marie Wilson on the screen in "My Friend Irma Goes West." It's a routin', tootin', shootin' bill.

CAMP FIRE LEADERS MEET

Camp Fire Leaders will meet at the home of Mrs. Sydney Close, 7529 Central, on Wednesday. All leaders are urged to attend. Following the meeting a plastic party will be given by Mrs. L. R. Butler.

Using the theme, "Music," Mrs. Mildred Whitaker installed Mrs. David Hentzen, as president; Mrs. Wm. Hubbard, vice-president; Mrs. R. B. Kalanquin, secretary and Mrs. E. A. Ross, treasurer. A song telling the duties of the officer was sung to each officer as she was introduced.

Mrs. Lois Freeman made the formal presentation of the charter, stressing the benefits and duties of a toastmistress.

The El Cajon club presented the program with Mrs. Dorothy Beiseg, toastmistress; Mrs. Myrle Bell, time keeper; Mrs. Ida Lawson, grammarian and critic. Mrs. Lucille Banks discussed "Weather" and Mrs. Betty Dennis, "Feel Younger and Live Longer."

Boy Finds Self Locked in Service Station Here

An 18 year old Lemon Grove boy and a 13 year old La Mesa youngster were nabbed by Deputy Sheriffs at a service station at the corner of Main and Broadway in what looked like an attempt to rob the station.

The younger of the two crawled into the station office through an open window, but was unable to come out that way, and could not get the door open, as it unlocks only from the outside.

The station owner was called, and he released the boy from his self-imprisonment, and the youngster was taken to the Anthony Home and the older boy booked at the county jail.

Family Party for Eastern Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Brandel, 2472 McKnight, entertained at a dinner and garden party Wednesday evening as a farewell courtesy to Glen E. Sundvold and Dale Peterson of Vermillion, their guests for the past two weeks, and who are leaving Friday for their work in the University at Vermillion, S. D.

The affair also honored Corp. Larry Kelly of Ogden View, who left today with Battery B, 40th Division of the National Guard for eight months training at Camp Cook.

Eighteen guests were present including the families of Mr. Sundvold's aunts, Mrs. John Wick of San Diego and Mrs. Levi Selvig of Massachusetts avenue.

Officers Installed at Masonic Club

Wm. Rife was installed as president of the Lemon Grove Masonic Club at impressive ceremonies at a dinner at Friendship Hall last Friday evening. Attorney Luther Hussey was the installing officer.

Along with Mr. Rife, Lewis F. Reed was installed as vice-president and Tom Parsons as secretary-treasurer. Seventy-four people attended the dinner.

No Radios, Cars or Phones When She Was Born

Mrs. Anna Kristine Knudsen, who makes her home at Restful Acres Rest Home, 8001 Palm, observed her 101st birthday Wednesday.

Her sons, Rev. Levi E. Knudsen and Peter A. Knudsen, and their wives, of San Diego, received for her at her home in the afternoon, when many of her friends called.

Mrs. Knudsen received many flowers, cards and gifts. On Thursday she received a card from a well-wisher who was 102 years old.

Mrs. Knudsen was born in Muenstedt, Denmark, and came to America when she was 23 years old. She lived in Redmond, Utah, until the death of her husband, when she came to San Diego in 1928.

Mrs. Knudsen had seven children, two of whom survive. She is deeply religious and spends much of her time in reading her Bible, without the use of glasses.

The Review joins Lemon Grove Community in congratulating Mrs. Knudsen in having grown old gracefully and in wishing her much happiness throughout the rest of life.

The Radiant California Centennial—I The Greatest State in the Union Closes Colorful First Century

In the spacious Hollywood Bowl, under the stars, "The California Story" will be lavishly unfolded five nights in succession, from September 8 to 12. It will be the glorious climax of three years of celebration, September 9 sealing the 100th anniversary of the state's admission to the union. The discovery of gold, the tragedy of Death Valley, the miracle of the missions and many other highlights of California History have all been previously staged, many civic and screen luminaries assisting. As the future fits the pattern properly, the parade of events will seem like a fairy tale of splendor and achievement, starting with the discovery of gold, the state in the galaxy has had a more impressive evolution, even settlers welcomed, tourists and settlers welcomed, tourists and settlers welcomed, a new social era envisioned, friendly relations established and much goodwill amuse people said the great Goethe, "to satisfy them is hard." One of the rich gifts of the state is its variety of diversion, seen and enjoyed everywhere and symbolized in the

Big Palm Gives Way to Progress

The big palm tree that has stood on the lot west of the bank was removed last week. The tree has stood there since the mind of man runneth not to the contrary.

A. F. Sonka, owner of the property, offered the tree to several groups and private people for replanting but nobody cared to undertake the job, so the tree was hauled away.

CLEM WHITAKER, Jr.

California's white-thatched, smiling Governor Earl Warren is well on his way toward making tradition-shattering history in this Golden State. Unless all signs and portents fail, the night of November 7, 1950, Earl Warren will become California's first three time Governor.

Blessed with all the attributes of a politician—big family, big smile, genial appearance—Earl Warren, most observers credit, also is a shrewd, calculating, smart politician, too. When his November opponent, James Roosevelt, proposed his fantastic mass evacuation to National Parks in event of attack scheme, Warren countered neatly by consulting with defense officials concerning logical steps to take.

When Attorney-General Howser recently issued an opinion throwing the State's $250,000,000 school bond program into a cocked hat, Warren was quick to respond to the suggestion of Assemblyman Francis Dunn of calling a Special Session of the Legislature to iron out the difficulty fast. At the same Special Session, Warren has amplified the call to include preparations for civilian defense. The Governor also is requesting a new absentee law to permit members of the Armed forces to vote while on duty outside the State.

All these things please a lot of people, and as the politicians will point out, they are smart and to Governor Warren's advantage politically. The score in many ways bears out the politicians' estimate, that Governor Warren is an extremely capable political strategist.

Once in a while, however, even the experts slip. Last week in a move obviously calculated to carry left wing support, Governor Warren condemned Proposition 10, the Housing Initiative, on the November ballot.
Proposition 10, the Governor said, would be a "roadblock" to civilian defense, it would prohibit the construction of "emergency housing."

Actually Proposition 10, attorneys point out, has nothing to do with "emergency housing." Proposition 10 simply requires that before the State or any State body constructs "low rent" public housing a vote of the people in the area involved be taken to approve or disapprove. The measure has to do with permanent public housing, not emergency housing. It has nothing to do with "low rent" housing, not with emergency housing, not with any of all income groups. Proposition 10 gives the people the right to vote on permanent public housing which they must pay for just as they have the right to vote on school bonds, subway bonds, sewage bonds, and all other municipal improvement measures.

Quite possibly Governor Warren is sold a bill of goods before he has condemned Proposition 10. (Maybe it's only coincidence one of his staff is a former attorney for the Los Angeles Housing Authority and that Housing Authorities depend on public housing.) Perhaps the Governor never read the bill.

Politically, however, the Governor blundered in a manner that surprised observers accustomed to his usual political sagacity.

FROM THE NEWS CIRCUIT
JAMES DORAIS

The I. Q. level on the UCLA campus must be the highest in the land.

A new student at the university, a robot genius named SWAC, is reported to bat at least 1000 in the intelligence department.

SWAC is a short for Standard's Western Automatic Computer. He is a protégé of the National Bureau of Standards Institute for Numerical Analysis.
SWAC's brain works at the rate of a million arithmetic operations an hour, and presumably at half that speed if half-wacked. At any rate he must be easily as fast as the best brain in the Quiz Kids Show.

If SWAC had been around during the late war, he would have put thousands of civilians out of work. According to his sponsors, he could have compiled in one month's time rocket firing tables that took hundreds of girls a year and a half to prepare.

It took the Navy's mathematical experts two years after the war broke out to figure out the fleet's proper fuel requirements.
SWAC could have solved that little problem with half his electric eyes shut.

SWAC can translate books into all languages, including the Scandinavian. Census Bureau officials are hopeful that he will even be able to digest this year's millions of completed census questionnaires and startle the Nation by announcing the total number of farmers who lease land from their in-laws, the average amount of money every fifth person makes, and similar gems of vital information.

SWAC's awed admirers predict that many heretofore unsolvable questions will be answered by UCLA's robot genius.
It's interesting to speculate on how much strain would be put on SWAC's cathode ray tubes to ferret out the answers to questions like these:

Why is the grass always greener on the other side of the fence?

Why do women drivers signal left and turn right?

How can one live within one's income?

What makes a Communist tick?

How can the Republicans win a presidential election?

If he can whip out solutions to these problems in the same length of time that he can calculate the trajectory of a guided missile, SWAC is indeed a genius.

For all his amazing mental attainments, SWAC isn't boastful or arrogant. He's a meek creature. And that's just as well, for unless he succeeds where mere mortals have failed in figuring out how the world can achieve lasting peace, he may someday inherit the earth.

Talks and Walks With Mother Nature

BY TRIxie TREGANZA

PRAIRIE FALCON

Prairie Falcon, Mexican Falcon, American Lanner Falcon.
The problem of evil has always bothered the theologian, and he is bound to wrestle with it, because inconsistency is intolerable in religious thinking.

But the bird-lover cannot be inconsistent. Within his little province he cannot "love, good and hate evil," for to do so would be to lose that joy in variety which is his endless delight.

Nature herself is inconsistent, fearfully so. Indeed it is she who has set theology's problem.
And if there be a higher unity or "religious synthesis" (and I believe there is) we as nature students have nothing to do with it. If we are to find satisfaction in things as they are, if we are to enjoy nature, external things,

We must surrender ourselves to admiration of beak and talon no less than wing and song. We may champion the cause of our specialty. Birds, against the world, if you like and death to cat, weasel and serpent; but you cannot adjudicate as between Magpie and Chick, Hawk and Sparrow, raptor and raptee. If you do you will only make yourself miserable, and wherefore?
All of which is artful preface to a declaration of love for that arched scamp and winned error, The Prairie Falcon.

Ruthless he is and as cruel as death; but ah, isn't he superb.
To recall his image is to obtain release from imprisoning walls, glad exit from formal gardens and the chirping of Sparrows.
To recall his scream is to set foot on the instant upon some bastion of the wilderness.

Away with your orange colored bungalows. Give me sunburned battlement in the hills of the country. A plague on your dicky birds. Let me dare the displeasure of the noble falcon as he falls like a bolt from the avenging blue and shrieks out his awful rage. Curse for curse and blow for blow, you jolly old pirate. Hide your treasures in the remotest cranny of the utter-most wilderness, if you will, I shall find them; and if I find them, they are mine; and if I reach them, you may wreck your vengeance on whom you will. I will not even reproach you for the rape of pullets nor the carnage of quails. Go to it old sport. Fill the air with shrieks and call heaven to witness what a rogue you are. Aye, but you are a gay fowl, and I'm over fond of you.

All the traditions of chivalry, save gentleness, and the association of romance gather about this bird. In speed, in grace, in prowess and in skill, he is the peer of any. And in the choice of nesting sites he is excelled by none.

Picture if you please, a granite cleft in the foothills. The road at the bottom rides over dissecting talus beds, rock-slides while the sun-kissed battlement of river rock towers on either hand to the height of a thousand feet; and they clear their own debris in sheer walls of at least half that height.

About the brink of the precipice a dozen Falcons are at play.
It is courting time and the birds are showing off. The females are the larger birds, but it is their turn to sit in the boxes while the aspirants perform. The doughty males are not really contending, only renewing their vows as they come hurtling out of the heavens screaming like all possessed and cutting parabolas whose acuteness is the marvel of the unexpected.

The female screams in wild approval or takes a turn herself because she cannot contain her fierce emotions. The rock walls resound with boisterous music, and the observer feels as though he were witnessing a play of elemental forces, riotous, exultant, unrestrained, the very passion of freedom and conquest.

The Falcon is king of birds and he knows it. Ferocity gleams in his eye and menace quivers in his talons. Mastery is his element; his very wings flash confidence, and caution is to him a thing unknown. The much vaunted Eagle is a craven beside him, and nothing affords the smaller bird greater delight than to hector his lethargic kinsman.

The Prairie Falcon is about crow size, powerful, easy of flight, light brownish-grey col-

NEW BULLETIN ON NECTARINES

"Phil and Mabel" is the unusual title of the latest bulletin published by the University of California College of Agriculture. It describes two new nectarines for California. These were originated and tested by the late Professor Guy L. Philp and are named in his and Mrs. Philp's honor.

Philp and Mabel are outstanding in several characteristics. They are of excellent size. Both are yellow-fleshed, freestone varieties, highly colored externally with a deep red washed blush covering nearly the entire surface. Philp is somewhat more highly colored than Mabel. The external color develops early so that the fruits are nearly full colored at shipping maturity. The clear yellow flesh of both varieties is attractive and of excellent fine texture. They both have delicious flavor. Philp is recommended for shipping because its flesh is firmer than Mabel's, while Mabel will be best suited for local market and home orchard use.

The bulletin is authored by Professor Claron O. Hesse of the Experiment Station, and contains excellent color reproductions of the new nectarine varieties.

"Phil and Mabel" may be obtained at the Farm Advisor office in San Diego, recently moved to Building No. One, County Operations Center, 4005 Rosecrans St., San Diego 10.

California Centennial

miracle of the movies, with Hollywood as a new world capital.

California has an area of 158,683 square miles, with a coastline of one thousand miles. Mt. Whitney, 14,502 feet, is the highest crest in the Union; and Death Valley, 278 feet below sea level, is the lowest nadir. In 1850 there were but 92,597 people in the state; now there are nearly 11 million. It leads all other states in irrigated acreage; and it has made blazing deserts bloom like an oasis. It is first in agriculture, with a yearly total of two and a half billion dollars. Its crops of citrus fruits and grapes is colossal. Closely following are prunes, plums, peaches, pears, apricots, apples, figs, dates, nuts, cherries, olives, alfalfa, lettuce, melons, cotton and various vegetables. Livestock, poultry and dairy interests are significant; and their take of fish is the world's greatest, surpassing two billion pounds yearly. Flowers abound in the systematic culture of which literal millions are made. Mines and minerals still count heavily, and the deposits of black gold are oceanic. Oil out-did the yellow metal in the production of quick riches. In 1925 the total exceeded 300 million dollars. At its height the boom was terrific. Millionaires mushroomed; and when the period leveled off, great fields and refineries dotted the south. Real Estate thrived. In 1900 the assessed valuation was one and a quarter billion; in 1950 it is 14 billion. The influx of settlers, war work and great natural resources produced a sensation.

Los Angeles, like a tidal wave, spread out in every direction, as did San Francisco, San Diego, Oakland, Sacramento, Fresno and scores of others. The last decade was particularly awesome: the state jumped ahead three and a half million, which, as a notable instance, is the total population of Norway.

California is first in many respects. It has the biggest bank, with over six billion resources. Hollywood heads and leads the world of cinema. The harvest of citrus and grapes actually exceeds the rest of the United States. It is definitely the flowerland of America. With nearly five million cars and trucks on its excellent thoroughfares and highways, it passes by over a million its nearest contender. Its fisheries yield much more than other state, making Los Angeles harbor the greatest fishing port of the world. It is perhaps topmost in radio, television and airplanes; and even though it may lag a little in the first two, it is heading forward too fast to leave the sequel in doubt.

Its big trees are unique, the diameters of which often reach 40 feet at the base. Its parks and woodlands are famous. "The Sierran forests," says John Muir, "contains the grandest forest trees; the sequoia, king of conifers; the noble sugar and yellow pines, Douglas spruce, libocedrus and the silver firs, each a giant of its kind, assembled together in one and the same forest, surpassing all other coniferous forests in the world."

California is first in agriculture, whose luscious products reach every part of America. The giant, flexing his muscles freely, seems to be preparing for that not too distant day when he will have to feed and support his own vast population. It faces the greatest of oceans and the incredible orient whose millions it will profitably subserve. Though it loves gold, it has never forgotten God, the worship of Whom furnished the first great impetus of immigration and settlement. Its love of culture is inherent and assertive. Schools, universities, libraries, museums, institutions, forums, theatres, hotels, resorts, retreats and shorelands all confirm the laudable tendency.

As one great writer puts it: "California, one of the Pacific coast states of the United States of America; physically one of the most independent, and in history and social life one of the most interesting in the Union." Its historical drama, in fact, may be roughly divided in three early parts: (1) Cabrillo and his successor, Ferrello, explored the entire coast of California in 1542-3; (2) between 1769 and 1823 came the "mission" or pastoral and pioneer period; (3) the rousing discovery of gold occurred in 1848 the very year California was annexed to the United States. Finally, the people themselves and their outlook on life, their unique social structure, their mounting plans for the future, their outdoor life in desert, uplands and meadows, their fiestas, pageants, rodeos, games, diversions, forums and assemblies, all point to a new public pattern, delicately aided, we must admit, by climate and conditions which ocean and desert have finely compounded. Greece, Egypt, India, in their halcyon days never enjoyed a better prospect, to which the modern arts and crafts can add their miraculous touches. "Age cannot wither or custom stale her infinite variety."
